

RESIDENT ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF MEDIA PRODUCTION

Media Arts and Culture

POSITION SUMMARY

Occidental College's Media Arts & Culture Department (MAC) invites applications for a Resident Assistant Professor Faculty position in Media Production. The position start date is August 16, 2026.

Media Arts & Culture seeks to prepare students for postgraduate success in a time of rapid change for the creative industries and for society more broadly. We have a distinctive opportunity and obligation, via our department's history-theory-practice approach and the College's commitments to interdisciplinarity, undergraduate research, local/global perspectives, and social justice, not simply to train students for the creative industries of today but to question and reimagine such industries and to help students navigate the everchanging possibilities and perils of media and technology more broadly.

We are therefore seeking a film/video/media practitioner with a compelling body of creative work and professional experience who also demonstrates a commitment to teaching such practices within core liberal arts frameworks of criticality, historicity, and cultural questioning. The candidate should be able to teach hands-on artistic and technical skills in lens-based media production practices that can be applied to a range of approaches and forms across fictional, documentary, and experimental work. The ability to provide new or more specialized offerings to the curriculum (e.g., in cinematography, sound design, virtual production, visual effects, directing actors, production design, game design, immersive media, or installation/site-specific work) is a plus. The new hire will teach 6 courses total (3 in Fall, 3 in Spring) including introductory, advanced, and capstone media production courses.

Candidates should evidence a commitment to high-impact teaching and to fostering an inclusive learning environment. As our production courses incorporate artistic and technical subjects, the successful candidate must be able to scaffold and provide hands-on instruction in production ideation, preproduction, production practices including the technical instruction of related equipment (whether camera, sound, or lighting), as well as introductory and advanced post-production software/skills including advanced picture and sound editing and color grading.

Our ideal candidate will help us continue developing and supporting our signature approach to Media Arts & Culture--which combines media history, theory, and practice; leverages Occidental's location in Los Angeles; and manifests the College mission's cornerstones of Excellence, Equity, Community, and Service. Occidental is strongly committed to a pluralistic campus community and the curriculum, and to fostering an inclusive, equitable, and just environment within which students, staff, administrators, and faculty thrive. Candidates who can contribute to these aims, who can advance the College's strategic equity and justice goals, and those from groups that are underrepresented in the field are particularly encouraged to apply.

"Resident" is a faculty category bargained between the College and the non-tenure track faculty union. Resident faculty are teaching faculty hired to meet long standing curricular needs at the College. They teach foundational and required courses within a department, provide student mentoring, and serve as advisors for students in the major or minor and pre-major/minor students (e.g., transfer, first-years). They are expected to participate in department-level service, including but not limited to contributing to department level assessment, student recruiting, program review, and community building. Resident faculty may engage in scholarly activities, but scholarship is not a responsibility of the position. Resident faculty members are appointed for an initial 1-year term, renewable in multi-year contracts, pending positive performance evaluation and curricular need.

QUALIFICATIONS

Required Qualifications:

- An MFA or Ph.D. in film/media production at time of appointment, or equivalent professional experience.
- Demonstrated experience with, excellence in, and commitment to teaching undergraduate media courses.
- Ability to teach essential courses in the curriculum including MAC 240, MAC 355, MAC 491, MAC 493, two new course offerings MAC 345 (new Fictional Media Production course designation) and MAC 392 (new Advanced Postproduction course designation), and to mentor Senior Comprehensives projects.
- Ability to contribute 200-level electives under the frameworks of MAC 245, MAC 247, MAC 255, or MAC 270.
