

showcasing scholarship

Initiatives that feature faculty work in different venues across campus (For example, OxyTalks! Video Series playing on Johnson Hall media wall)

publicity

Publicize professional achievement of faculty members through diverse outlets, including but not limited to social media and newsletters (For example, Faculty Excellence Brochure featuring faculty's high-impact work)

media engagement

Promotion of faculty experts to the media and media training for faculty (For example, workshops on writing commentary and op-eds)

cultivating enthusiasm around intellectual work

Programs and events that share faculty research, scholarship, and creative work across divisions and disciplines across campus (For example: New Faculty Flash Talks and Reception)

Key partners
Office of Marking and Communication Institutional Advancement Committee of Research, Scholarship, and Intellectual Life

donor cultivation

Promote value of and financial needs around faculty scholarship (For example, Reunion weekend panels)

resources

Provide faculty with professional development resources (For example: Membership in the National Consortium for Faculty Diversity and Development)

funding

Support faculty in grant seeking and manage funds that support faculty research (For example: Article Production Funds and CRS Flash Grants)

workshops

Programs that help faculty focus on specific skills related to professional achievement (For example: Workshop on planning and setting research goals)

Key partners
Office of the Dean of the College
The Business Office
The Center for the Digital Liberal Arts

mentorship

Individual support for faculty of all ranks and all career stages, tailored to the faculty needs (For example: one-on-one consultations)

faculty groups

Direct leadership of and support for faculty building groups around professional achievement (For example: Accountability groups and OxySuccess! Program for second-year T3 faculty)