Award Type: Graduate Study Abroad

Who Can Apply:
- U.S. citizens at the time of application. Permanent residents are not eligible.
- Hold a B.A. degree or the equivalent before the start of the grant.
- Applicants who have not earned a B.A. degree or the equivalent, but who have extensive professional study and/or experience in fields in which they wish to pursue a project, may be considered.
- Be in good health
- Have sufficient proficiency in the written and spoken language of the host country to communicate with the people and to carry out the proposed study. This is especially important for projects in the social sciences and the humanities.

Description:
The United States Department of State, through the Institute of International Education (IIE) and in conjunction with foreign governments and universities, annually awards approximately 1,500 grants supporting graduate study, English teaching, and research in over 155 countries. Fulbright Full Grants in some cases provide language or orientation courses (where appropriate), tuition, book and research allowances, living expenses for the academic year, and supplemental health and accident insurance. Applications can only be made for one country. Under certain circumstances, students may submit projects that require a primary country site for their study or research, including a secondary and even tertiary site. This option is only available in selected countries for regional programs. A research Fulbright application must be accompanied by a letter of affiliation from the individual/institution abroad that will supervise the applicant's proposed research/project.
