SYLLABUS REVISION 2

According to Thomas Jefferson, America was to be an “agrarian Republic” — a pastoral farmland, a different world from the dirty and decaying cities of monarchical Europe. Yet, by Jefferson’s day, it was already too late. North America had been dotted with great metropolises and minor towns for thousands of years, and new waves of European and African settlers founded hundreds of new ones as well. Indeed, for many early migrants, America was itself a “city on the hill” — an urban image for a new society.

In this course, we will survey American urban history from those early days to the present, focusing in the second half specifically on Los Angeles, where new forms of decentralized urbanism took form in the twentieth century. We will explore not only suburbia and freeways, Disneyland and other quasi-urban outposts, but also the changing character of the inner city in the mid-twentieth century, as well as radical efforts to reform existing American cities. In the process, we encounter the American city of today — multicentered, privately planned, decentralized, and multiethnic. We will conclude by asking whether contemporary developments in urbanism — the changing character of public space, the turn to privatism, and the neglect of public transport infrastructures, challenges to democracy and equality — are ultimately compatible with the American dream of the “city on the hill” for the twenty-first century.

REQUIREMENTS

This course combines extensive discussion, some lecture, and a substantial amount of reading and writing. You will be required to write two 4-5 page argumentative essays as well as a more substantial 8-10 page final paper. In addition to these essays, you will submit brief discussion questions / comments ahead of each class. Finally, we will be developing a collaborative project this semester with Highland Park Heritage Trust, an important community-based grassroots organization dedicated to the preservation of the rich architectural history of this region.

All essays must all be submitted via Moodle on or before their due date. Note that papers turned in late without explicit permission will be penalized as much as 10% per day, so please talk to me in advance if an emergency begins to arise that might jeopardize your ability to complete any assignment on time.

Attendance & Participation	20%
Reading Questions / Observations (due by 4pm before each class session).....	15%
HPHT Project	15%
Two Short Essays	25%
Final Longer Essay	25%

In order to develop an environment where constructive thinking and collegial interaction can develop, attendance and participation in class will be mandatory; more than a single class absence will result in a lowering of your participation grade, as will failure to come to class adequately prepared. Note also that this course will also require some fieldwork scheduled outside of the normal class period.

CLASS EXPECTATIONS

- ① Come to each class having read and marked up all assigned texts, having thoughtfully submitted reading questions/comments in advance. Be ready to discuss these readings within the context of the themes of the course.
- ② Writing assignments will be distributed during the semester; all papers should reflect careful thought, revision, and proofreading.
- ③ Be ready to attend speaker series and conference events (and be prepared to participate in question and answer sessions).
- ④ Participate in off-campus collaborative activities with Highland Park Heritage Trust and help design and complete joint research/archival project relating to their local historical preservation mission.

COURSE GOALS & OUTCOMES

- ① Students will gain a detailed awareness of the major topics, debates, and historiography of American urban history and, through thoughtful writing, contribute their own informed analysis to this discourse.
- ② Students will become familiar with social transformations in nineteenth and twentieth century American cities — including the reconfiguration of systems of prejudice, segregation, and displacement (along lines of race, class, gender, etc.) — which informed, shaped, and gave meaning to the built environment in major cities (and, to a lesser extent, smaller towns).
- ③ Students will learn about the relationships between the built environment and social contexts, the effects manifested in changes in the urban landscape, and the specific contexts of demographic change, gentrification, and historical preservation efforts in Northeast Los Angeles in the late twentieth century.
- ④ Students will hone their skills at synthesizing academic interdisciplinary secondary source scholarship with techniques of cultural analysis gleaned from contemporary Critical Theory to produce their own original argumentative interpretations of American urban history.
- ⑤ Students will gain experience in forging collaborative relationships with grassroots civic organizations (Highland Park Heritage Trust) and, in the process, gain an appreciation for the importance of reciprocity in community based learning contexts. In turn, students will explore modes of community and spatial analysis beyond those reflected in the academic historiography and contribute to the community's own historical understanding and awareness.

A NOTE ON THE STUDY OF THE PAST

Some of the texts, images, and recorded materials we will encounter this semester will be disturbing, depicting a historical period rife with violence, suffering, and often overt prejudice, as well as the defiant struggle to make our society a more tolerant and humane place. Some students may well find that events and expressions of the past resonate with them today in powerful ways. No one in this class bears any individual responsibility for the choices other people made long ago, yet we all inherit the consequences of that history and an obligation to open our own eyes to the prejudices, ideas, and struggles that continue to shape us.

As with all classes at Occidental College, each of us will be expected to express respect, support, and explicit kindness toward our peers at all times, especially when disagreeing on a point of fact or interpretation, and to be particularly sensitive to our peers' intellectual and emotional reactions as they encounter and grapple with the effects of our shared historical legacy. If you have an idea how to improve the way we treat the powerful and charged historical material in this course, or perceive a way to make our shared discussions and investigations more inclusive and compassionate, please share those insights and concerns with me right away.

IMPORTANT ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS

The last day to add this course is 1 February 2019 and the last day to drop is 5 March 2019.

This class is structured to be compatible with most students' capabilities; if you have specific, documented physical or learning disabilities and require additional accommodations, please let me know at the very beginning of the semester so that we can work with Oxy's office of Disability Services (<http://www.oxy.edu/disability-services>) to tailor reasonable modifications.

Academic dishonesty will result in the most severe repercussions. Using someone else's words — or even ideas — without attribution is plagiarism. For Oxy students, plagiarism constitutes a violation of the Occidental College codes of academic integrity (see <http://www.oxy.edu/student-handbook/academic-ethics/academic-ethics>), which will result in disciplinary proceedings and almost certainly failure of the course. Fortunately, plagiarism is easily avoided merely by clearly citing all your sources. Use quotation marks and footnotes or in-text references to fully identify any ideas, sentences, or even phrases that are not your own invention. If you are ever unsure about the ethical use of sources or ideas, simply ask me — I am here to help.
