“Where’d All the Time Go?”
Music and Lyrics by Scott McMicken and Toby Leaman

Where’d all the time go?
It’s starting to fly
See how the hands go
Waving goodbye
And you know I get so forgetful
When I look in your eyes

Now she’s walking backwards
Through a parade
And I’m stuck in the shadow
Blocking the shade
And there ain’t no way to sweep up
The mess that we’ve made

She gets dressed up like a pillow
So she’s always in bed
Flowers for the sick and dead
She’s on the go, way too fast and way too slow

*Audience standing
She’ll turn to stone at hospitals and funeral homes
And when the fog rises
Somebody sighs who is not in disguise anymore

There’s nothing to keep you
From falling in love
It starts at the bottom
And comes from above
Like pieces of a puzzle
Like a hand in a glove

She gets dressed up like a pillow
So she’s always in bed
Flowers for the sick and dead
She’s on the go, way too fast and way too slow
She’ll turn and stop at hospitals and funeral homes
And when the tide rises
Somebody sinks and is gone in the blink of an eye.

Candidates for Degrees

Honoris Causa

Dr. Kimberly A. Shriner ’80

A product of Pasadena public schools, Kimberly Shriner was a marine biology major at Occidental before obtaining her medical degree at Case Western Reserve University. Her medical studies coincided with the rise of HIV as a global pandemic, sparking her interest in infectious diseases. After returning to her hometown to start a private practice, in 1992 she was hired by Huntington Hospital as an infectious disease specialist and a member of the teaching faculty. Four years later, she founded the Phil Simon Clinic at the Huntington, a multidisciplinary program that provides comprehensive medical and psychosocial care for HIV patients. For the last two decades, the Simon Clinic Tanzania Project has brought medical, surgical, and social help to underserved populations in East Africa. Shriner has published in many peer-reviewed journals and continues to do research in HIV, tropical and zoonotic diseases, and climate effects on infectious pathogens. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Shiner has led the Huntington’s efforts to battling the COVID virus, both as a front-line physician and as a major resource for television, radio, and newspaper reporters covering the pandemic. She has worked closely with both the Pasadena Public Health Department and Occidental, ensuring that the College is prepared and applies best practices in dealing with the pandemic. She has co-taught a course on the pandemic with Biology Professor Roberta Pollock and has provided mentorships and preceptorships for students at Huntington. She recently was the recipient of the hospital’s Heart of Huntington Award.

María Elena Durazo

The seventh of 11 children born to migrant worker parents, María Elena Durazo traveled with her family as a child, following the crops in California and Oregon and experiencing the exploitative conditions and hardships that migrant laborers suffer. In spite of these obstacles, Durazo attended St. Mary’s College in Moraga and graduated in 1975. She then entered the labor movement as an organizer for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (later called UNITE, the Union of Needletrades, Industrial and Textile Employees). While working full-time as a union organizer, she earned a law degree from the People’s College of Law in 1985. By 1987, Durazo was ready to lead a drive by the rank and file of HERE Local 11 to make the union more responsive to its majority-Latino membership. The organizing drive successfully instituted a shop steward system that educated the rank and file on their rights; workers were now able to participate in negotiating their union contracts and all subsequent meetings and publications were bilingual. In 2004, she became the executive vice president of UNITE-HERE International, the organization that resulted from the merger of the UNITE and HERE unions. From 2006 through 2014, she was the first woman to serve as secretary-treasurer of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, the country’s second largest labor council. In 2008, she served as national co-chair of Barack Obama ’83’s presidential campaign. Besides her union work, Durazo has served on many civic commissions and boards, including the Los Angeles Commission on Airports, the Los Angeles Parks and Recreation Committee, and the California State Coastal Commission. Durazo was married to the late union leader Miguel Contreras, who served as executive secretary-treasurer of the Los Angeles Federation from 1996 until his untimely death in 2005. She has two children, Mario and Michael Contreras.

With the leadership and support of Occidental’s parents, we can excel in our mission as we prepare our students to become tomorrow’s leaders. With gratitude, we thank the following parents of the Class of 2022 who made a gift to Occidental from July 1, 2021, through April 30, 2022.
Academic Costume

Academic costume dates back to European universities in the Middle Ages, when gowns and hoods were required for warmth in unheated buildings. Eventually in the United States the mortarboard, with medieval tassel, became the standard headwear, while the colorful hood is draped over the back of the gown.

Gowns are normally black, although some universities have designed their own in the color of the institution. The hood reflects both the field of study and the institution that conferred the degree. An Occidental hood has a black-and-orange lining to reflect the College's colors. The color of the velvet edging on the hood is that of the degree conferred. The width of the edging represents the degree—two, three, or five inches for the bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees, respectively. The mortarboard is black with a black tassel, although if worn by the holder of a doctoral degree, it may have a gold thread. Undergraduates wear the tassel on the right side; graduates, on the left.

The following colors are associated with the degrees frequently represented in an academic procession of the faculty in a liberal arts college:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arts, Letters, Humanities</th>
<th>Medicine</th>
<th>Kelly Green</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Economics</td>
<td>Music</td>
<td>Pink</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Education</td>
<td>Philosophy</td>
<td>Dark Blue</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fine Arts</td>
<td>Physical Education</td>
<td>Sage Green</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law</td>
<td>Science</td>
<td>Golden Yellow</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Library Science</td>
<td>Theology</td>
<td>Scarlet</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Members of the governing board of an institution are entitled to wear doctoral gowns. Trustees of Occidental College wear gold medallions embossed with the College seal, hung from an orange ribbon, with their black gowns.

Cultural Identity

One of the most important accomplishments of a student's college experience is the development of their authentic self. Members of the Class of 2022 proudly display their ethnic identity with a black stole bearing the Occidental crest and class year. The two tips of the stole reflect their ethnicity either by a fabric or a flag that is representative of their heritage. First-generation graduates wear a white-and-orange cord.
